Dear friends in Christ,

Grace and peace to you!

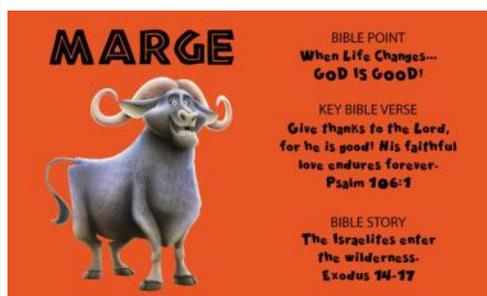

I'm writing this as we are in the middle of our week of Vacation Bible School. I want to offer a huge thank you to Jillian Weiss for the amazing job she has done for the last four years organizing and running our program. As she will be heading to grad school soon she is stepping down from the role of VBS Director. If you are interested in running this program next year, please let her or myself know.

Yet, the reason VBS is on my mind for this newsletter is because one of our days of VBS the Bible buddy Marge the Water Buffalo reminds us that "When life changes... God is good." The Scripture memory verse of the day was: "Give thanks to the Lord, for He is good. His faithful love endures forever!" (Psalm 106:1) Kids struggle with change and we may think that it is something we grow out of, but not so much.

Adults struggle with changes as much as, if not more, than kids. Here at St. Luke's we've had quite a few changes in the last few years. Pastor Frank retired in September of 2017. Rob Hall resigned as our director of music. Lori Neumeyer retired and moved up north to be close to family. And our beloved organist, Doris Lezon, has submitted her resignation so she can focus on her health and spending time with her family. Our congregation has officially started the process of seeking a second full time pastor to serve as a co-pastor. We have welcomed a new choir director, Rick Napierala, a new bell choir director, Jim Bischoff, a new GiG band leader, Kari Crosby, and we are beginning the process for a new organist. This is a lot of change for a congregation to undergo. I understand that there may be anxieties and fears. But, just like Marge the Water Buffalo, I encourage you to remember that when life changes, God is good.

Even in the midst of change, our God remains the same. In fact, Scripture shows us many times how God was the instigator of change in the lives of the people of God. Often we see God stirring the hearts and spirits of people to move them in a new direction. Though frightened, these faithful followers trusted the movement of the Spirit and followed God into new ventures.

I believe all the change that we have been seeing at St. Luke's is a sign of the Spirit moving and being at work among us, getting us ready for the next big calling God will place on our hearts. Even though it can be a little scary it is also exciting to think about all the possibilities that God continues to open before us. I have been serving beside you for four years as of July 15, and I continue to be amazed at the heart and passion for God and for the work of the Lord that is here at St. Luke's. It is a joy and a privilege to be your pastor and I am excited to share in whatever is to come for us as a congregation.

So, remember, when life changes, God is good.

God's Blessings!

CALL COMMITTEE REPORT

June 9, 2019

We wish to thank you and commend you for your support and prayers. Knowing that you are thinking and praying for our work is a great comfort.

Your Call Committee has been working on your behalf over the past several months by meeting with the South East Michigan Synod office representative to verify that our Ministry Site Profile (a deep-dive ‘help wanted’ ad) accurately described this congregation and the role that we seek to fill. Having the MSP submitted to the Synod we have then worked with our Synod representative to identify candidates that have posted a Rostered Ministry Profile (an in-depth candidate resume) that they were seeking or were open to a call.

Our first review of the candidates available with qualifications that aligned with our MSP yielded a group of four Pastors that had the qualifications and experience that we are seeking in a Co-pastor situation at St. Luke’s.

Initial interviews were conducted by the entire Committee with each of the candidates utilizing Skype video conferencing to enable a professional and yet relaxed conversation with each person. While on paper all of the selected candidates were seemingly good-fits to our role at St. Luke’s, your Call Committee elected to not proceed with three of the interviewee’s. A fourth candidate was unanimously identified as highly desirable to fill the role, however due to a job change for their spouse they reluctantly withdrew their candidacy.

The Call Committee has now returned to the Synod to select an additional group of newly available candidates to interview.

We anticipate this review, selection and interview process to proceed smoothly but caution that the timing to complete a thorough effort could take an additional 2-3 months.

As we proceed, we ask that you continue to hold us in your prayers; so that our efforts on your behalf result in finding a candidate that we are confident will be met with your support.

Respectfully submitted on behalf of the Call Committee,

Griff Crammond
Chairman

MEASLES

There are 2 different kinds of measles both caused by viruses. One is Rubeola and the other is Rubella. Rubeola was eradicated in the United States by year 2000 until our recent outbreak. However due to infected travelers from outside of the country exposing unvaccinated U.S. citizens, there has been a serious outbreak again. So far this year there have been 940 cases in 26 states, including Michigan.

The symptoms of Rubeola start with a high fever, cough, runny nose, red watery eyes, and then a rash of small red bumps spreading over the body. Then small white spots occur in the mouth called Koplek spots. These symptoms can occur within 7 to 14 days after exposure and can easily be diagnosed, verified with a throat swab or blood test. Serious complications of those infected can occur, such as ear infections, pneumonia and encephalitis, and even death. Treatment is bringing down the fever, increasing fluids, and possible antibiotics.

The virus of Rubeola lives in the nose and throat, and can be spread via coughing and sneezing. It can live for 2 hours in the airspace where the infected person existed. There is a 90 per cent chance of unvaccinated people will become infected, if exposed.

There is a vaccine called MMR (Measles, Mumps, and Rubella) that was developed in the 1960’s. There is a myth that this vaccination can cause Autism, which has prevented many parents from vaccinating their children. There is absolutely no scientific evidence that this vaccination cause Autism.

Rubella, also called the German Measles or three day measles is caused by a different virus, which still has been eliminated in the U.S. so far. The symptoms are similar but much milder. However if a pregnant woman is infected there is a likely chance the baby will have a birth defect.

The above expresses the importance of vaccinations which is the only prevention from these 2 viruses. Call your doctor if you feel you have been exposed.

June 24, 2019

The Pension Protection Act of 2006 first allowed taxpayers age 70½ and older to make tax-free charitable donations directly from their IRAs. The law was originally scheduled to expire in 2007, but was extended periodically through 2014 by subsequent legislation and finally made permanent by the Protecting Americans from Tax Hikes (PATH) Act of 2015.

Charitable Contributions from IRAs

The Pension Protection Act of 2006 first allowed taxpayers age 70½ and older to make tax-free charitable donations directly from their IRAs. By making a qualified charitable distribution (QCD) from an IRA directly to a qualified charitable organization, older IRA owners were allowed to exclude up to $100,000 annually from gross income. These gifts, also known as "charitable IRA rollovers," would otherwise be taxable IRA distributions. The law was originally scheduled to expire in 2007, but was extended periodically through 2014 by subsequent legislation and finally made permanent by the Protecting Americans from Tax Hikes (PATH) Act of 2015.

How QCDs work

You must be 70½ or older in order to be eligible to make QCDs. You simply instruct your IRA trustee to make a distribution directly from your IRA (other than SEP and SIMPLE IRAs) to a qualified charity. The distribution must be one that would otherwise be taxable to you. You can exclude up to $100,000 of QCDs from your gross income each year. And if you file a joint return, your spouse (if 70½ or older) can exclude an additional $100,000 of QCDs. Note: You don't get to deduct QCDs as a charitable contribution on your federal income tax return that would be double-dipping.

QCDs count toward satisfying any required minimum distributions (RMDs) that you would otherwise have to receive from your IRA, just as if you had received an actual distribution from the plan. However, distributions that you actually receive from your IRA (including RMDs) and subsequently transfer to a charity cannot qualify as QCDs.

Example: Assume that your RMD for 2019, which you're required to take no later than December 31, 2019, is $25,000. You receive a $5,000 cash distribution from your IRA in February 2019, which you then contribute to Charity A. In June 2019, you also make a $15,000 QCD to Charity A. You must include the $5,000 cash distribution in your 2019 gross income (but you may be entitled to a charitable deduction if you itemize your deductions, a strategy that may be less beneficial now than prior to 2018 due to passage of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act). You exclude the $15,000 of QCDs from your 2019 gross income. Your $5,000 cash distribution plus your $15,000 QCD satisfy $20,000 of your $25,000 RMD for 2019. You'll need to withdraw another $5,000 no later than December 31, 2019, to avoid a penalty.

Example: Assume you turned 70½ in 2018. You must take your first RMD (for 2018) no later than April 1, 2019. You must take your second RMD (for 2019) no later than December 31, 2019. Assume each RMD is $25,000. You don't take any cash distributions from your IRA in 2018 or 2019. On March 31, 2019, you make a $25,000 QCD to Charity B. Because the QCD is made prior to April 1, it satisfies your $25,000 RMD for 2018. On December 31, 2019, you make a $75,000 QCD to Charity C. Because the QCD is made by December 31, it satisfies your $25,000 RMD for 2019. You can exclude the $100,000 of QCDs from your 2019 gross income.

As indicated earlier, a QCD must be an otherwise taxable distribution from your IRA. If you've made nondeductible contributions, then normally each distribution carries with it a pro-rata amount of taxable and nontaxable dollars. However, a special rule applies to QCDs — the pro-rata rule is ignored and your taxable dollars are treated as distributed first.

Example: Assume you have a single traditional IRA with a current value of $100,000, which includes $10,000 of nondeductible contributions. Therefore, you have a taxable balance of $90,000 and a nontaxable balance of $10,000. If you were to make a $5,000 withdrawal from your IRA, nine-tenths ($$10,000/$100,000$) of your distribution, or $4,500, would be taxable and one-tenth ($$10,000/$100,000$), or $500, would be nontaxable. However, if you make a $5,000 QCD, the entire $5,000 amount will be considered to come from your $90,000 taxable balance.

If you have multiple IRAs, they are aggregated when calculating the taxable and nontaxable portion of a distribution from any one IRA.

Example: Assume you have two traditional IRAs. IRA One has a value of $50,000 and does not include any nondeductible contributions. IRA Two also has a $50,000 value but includes $10,000 of nondeductible contributions. For tax purposes you are treated as owning a single traditional IRA with a value of $100,000 and a nontaxable balance of $10,000. If you were to make a withdrawal of $50,000 from IRA Two, nine-tenths ($$10,000/$100,000$) of your distribution, or $45,000, would be taxable and one-tenth ($$10,000/$100,000$), or $5,000, would be nontaxable. However, if you make a $5,000 QCD from IRA Two, the entire $5,000 amount will be considered to come from your $90,000 taxable balance.

Caution: RMDs are calculated separately for each traditional IRA you own, but may be taken from any of your IRAs.

Caution: Your QCD cannot be made to a private foundation, donor-advised fund, or supporting organization [as described in IRC Section 509(a)(3)]. Further, the gift cannot be made in exchange for a charitable gift annuity or to a charitable remainder trust.

Why are QCDs important?

Without this special rule, taking a distribution from your IRA and donating the proceeds to a charity would be a bit more cumbersome and possibly more expensive. You would request a distribution from the IRA and then make the contribution to the charity yourself. You'd include the distribution in gross income and then take a corresponding income tax deduction for the charitable contribution. But due to IRS limits, the additional tax from the distribution may be more than the charitable deduction. And due to much higher standard deduction amounts ushered in by the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act passed in 2017, itemizing deductions may have become even less beneficial in 2018 and beyond, rendering QCDs even more potentially appealing.

QCDs avoid all this by providing an exclusion from income for the amount paid directly from your IRA to the charity — you don't report the IRA distribution in your gross income, and you don't take a deduction for the QCD.

Can I name a charity as beneficiary of my IRA?

Yes, you can name a charity as beneficiary of your IRA, but be sure to understand the advantages and disadvantages.

Generally, a spouse, child, or other individual you designate as beneficiary of a traditional IRA must pay federal income tax on any distribution received from the IRA after your death. By contrast, if you name a charity as beneficiary, the charity will not have to pay any income tax on distributions from the IRA after your death (provided that the charity qualifies as a tax-exempt charitable organization under federal law), a significant tax advantage.

After your death, distributions of your assets to a charity generally qualify for an estate tax charitable deduction. In other words, if a charity is your sole IRA beneficiary, the full value of your IRA will be deducted from your taxable estate for purposes of determining the federal estate tax (if any) that may be due. This can also be a significant advantage if you expect the value of your taxable estate to be at or above the federal estate tax exclusion amount ($11,400,000 for 2019).

Of course, there are also nontax implications. If you name a charity as sole beneficiary of your IRA, your family members and other loved ones will obviously not receive any benefit from those IRA assets when you die. If you would like to leave some of your assets to your loved ones and some assets to charity, consider leaving your taxable retirement funds to charity and other assets to your loved ones. This may offer the most tax-efficient solution, because the charity will not have to pay any tax on the retirement funds.

If retirement funds are a major portion of your assets, another option to consider is a charitable remainder trust (CRT). A CRT can be structured to receive the funds free of income tax at your death and then pay a (taxable) lifetime income to individuals of your choice. When those individuals die, the remaining trust assets pass to the charity. Finally, another option is to name the charity and one or more individuals as co-beneficiaries. (Note: There are fees and expenses associated with the creation of trusts.)

The legal and tax issues discussed here can be complex. Be sure to consult an estate planning attorney for further guidance.
